

Summer school of the CEEPUS network
"Philosophy and Interdisciplinarity" (HR-1107)

INTERDISCIPLINARITY within PHILOSOPHY, PHILOSOPHY behind INTERDISCIPLINARITY

Department of Philosophy and Centre for Interdisciplinary Research,
Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences,
Josip Juraj Strossmayer University of Osijek
July 10–16, 2023

The CEEPUS network “Philosophy and Interdisciplinarity“, which encompasses 27 institutions in 14 European countries, organizes summer schools biannually. Since the network is devoted to fostering interdisciplinary research on a broad philosophical basis, its summer schools aim to tackle a rich variety of topics in interdisciplinary manner through interactive forms of education: papers (lectures) with discussions, seminars, workshops, and round tables. Not only does it strengthen connection between philosophical investigations and other disciplines, and raises awareness of interdisciplinary nature of many scientific and social problems, the summer school also promotes stronger cooperation between higher-education institutions of Central and South-East Europe.

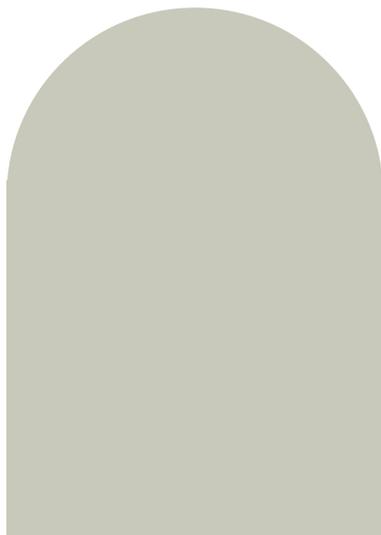

After its first and very successful summer school “The Role of Philosophy in Interdisciplinary Research and the Encounter of European Societies” at the Institute of Philosophy in Graz July 12–18, 2021, the network now organizes its second summer school at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences in Osijek July 10–16, 2023. The rich programme of the second summer school consists of ten papers and discussions, four seminars, one workshop, two round tables, and one invited lecture, which will be given by 15 university teachers from 8 European countries (Austria, Croatia, Czech Republic, Germany, Poland, Romania, Serbia, Slovenia). The general aim of this summer school is to further investigate the multifaceted relationship between philosophy and interdisciplinarity by discussing complex challenges of the Anthropocene from various perspectives, such as history of philosophy, epistemology, philosophy of science, philosophy of technology and artificial intelligence, philosophy of language and cognitive linguistics, political philosophy, ethics and bioethics, philosophy of education and philosophical counselling.

This year’s summer school will hopefully deepen the existing collaboration between 12 participating universities of the CEEPUS network “Philosophy and Interdisciplinarity” whose representatives (students and teachers) take part in it, as well as establish new connections, and foster designing future joint projects.

Ljudevit Fran Ježić

Demian Papo

– final programme –

Monday, July 10

18:00 opening speeches (Representative of the Faculty, the organizers D. Papo and Lj. F. Ježić)

18:30 Demian Papo: Philosophy as Interdisciplinarity (University of Osijek, Croatia) (paper and discussion)

20:00 Dinner

Tuesday, July 11

10:00 Goran Rujević (University of Novi Sad, Serbia): Interdisciplinarity versus Overspecialization (paper and discussion)

11:30 Marko Kos (University of Zagreb, Croatia): Inter- and Transdisciplinary Research in the Context of Bioethics (paper and discussion)

13:30 Lunch

16:00 Niko Šetar & Bojan Borstner (University of Maribor, Slovenia): Reliable & Responsible Robots: Virtue and Vice in Artificial Intelligence (seminar)

18:00 Daniela Camhy (University of Graz, Austria): Neo-Socratic Dialogue (workshop)

Wednesday, July 12

10:00 Zoran Dimić (University of Niš, Serbia): The Interdisciplinary Character of Aristotle's Methodology in his Practical Philosophy Writings (paper and discussion)

11:30 David Černín and Zuzana Rybaříková (University of Ostrava, Czech Republic): The History of Philosophy and the Philosophy of Historiography (seminar)

13:30 Lunch

16:00 Jakub Marek (Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic): Dignity in Healthcare as a Philosophical Problem (seminar)

18:00 Round table: How Loyal Should We Be to Our Beliefs and Convictions?

Thursday, July 13

10:00 invited lecture by Jan Cornelius Schmidt (University of Applied Technology, Darmstadt, Germany): Philosophy of Interdisciplinarity

11:30 Hrvoje Potlimbrzović (University of Osijek, Croatia), Interdisciplinarity in Croatian Philosophy of the 20th Century (paper and discussion)

13:30 Lunch

16:00 Milan Jovanović (University of Niš, Serbia): Towards an Interdisciplinary Account of Causation (paper and discussion)

19:00 Osijek sightseeing

Friday, July 14

10:00 Nevena Jevtić (University of Novi Sad, Serbia): Interdisciplinary Accounts of Equality and Freedom of Women (paper and discussion)

11:30 Ljudevit Fran Ježić (University of Zagreb, Croatia): The Mutual Influence of Language and Thought through the Lens of Interdisciplinary Topics (paper and discussion)

13:30 Lunch

16:00 Claudiu Mesaros (University of Timisoara, Romania): Philosophy and Therapy: Contemporary Concerns Regarding the Social Role of Philosophy (seminar)

18:00 Round table: Postdigital Science and Education – Transdisciplinary Issues

Saturday, July 15

9:30 Joanna Mysona Byrska (University of Krakow, Poland): The Competences of Tomorrow, or Why You Need to Teach Philosophy and Critical Thinking (paper and discussion)

11:00 Daniela Camhy (University of Graz, Austria): Philosophical Reflections on Knowledge and Responsibility – Trust in Science and Democracy (paper and discussion)

13:00 Lunch

15:00 Excursion to Baranja and Kopački rit

Sunday, July 16

Departure of participants

AGENCIJA ZA
MOBILNOST I
PROGRAME EU

